Solo Exhibition by Zena Assi

Solo Exhibition by Zena Assi

The Lebanese-born artist Zena Assi moved to London in 2014. Drawing from her cultural experiences in her home country and her new environment, she presents the idea that people re-evaluate their cultural identity when they are faced with a new one and decide what to embrace and what to leave behind. The series 'Put it in a Tin' encapsulates this internal conflict with large canvases of mixed media bouquets.

Another series entitled 'My City-Wall' delves deeper into the disharmony and angst of daily city life by those affected with civil unrest. She uses complex layering of mixed media, jagged lines, collage work and other styles to reflect the emotional burdens of the masses.

Zena Assi's work has already been recognized internationally and has featured in international auction houses, including the famous Sotheby's of London. Her exhibition in Dubai will coincide with her participation in the 57th Venice Biennale, and she is marked as one to watch in the art world.
